GHOST THAT DRIVES A PLOW.—A respectable farmer named Petersen, who owns a place a few miles from Fernandina, Fla., tells a curious story of a ghost that haunts his cornfield and plows by moonlight. He says that he first noticed the apparition about a month ago when sitting up with a sick child. He happened to look out on the field about the hour of midnight, and to his amazement he saw the figure of a man guiding an ox team over the ground. The animals, man and plow were all as plain to be seen as if it had been daylight, though the rest of the field was in comparative gloom.

Not knowing what to make of this singular sight he called his eldest son to go and see who the stranger was.
The boy went at once, and his father, watching him, was further amazed to see the lad walk right through the plow and man as if there was nothing there. When the boy returned he declared that he had found nothing and nobody in the field. Mr. Petersen himself now resolved to go and did so, but could see no trace of the man and team, though on returning to the room from which he had seen the sight he found them as plain as before. The man was dressed in the clothes of a laborer and wore a large, broad-brimmed hat, which completely concealed his features.

He seemed intent on his work and never raised his head, but would crack the whip he carried over the back of the oxen, but without noise. Since this time Mr. Petersen says he has repeatedly seen the phantom plowman and has called in neighbors to see it with him, though always on going into the field nothing was to be found. The people about declare that the figure is that of the farmer who owned the place before Petersen bought it, and who early one morning was found dead in this field, and it was thought by his own hand.

A RAZOR STRAP FROM THE SKIN OF NAT TURNER.—It is fifty-one years since Virginia was thrilled with horror by an insurrection, which broke out in 1831 in Southampton county, under the leadership of Nat Turner, a negro of magnificent physique and strong and ambitious mind, but crazed with a fantasy which made him fancy himself a God-appointed leader, selected to exterminate the whites. The insurrection was quickly quelled, and Turner captured and executed.

Some of the physicians, to whom the body was surrendered for anatomical purposes, took from Turner's back a strip of skin which was converted into a razor strap, which afterwards came into the possession of Robert Pritchett, clerk of the Greene county court, from whom it has come down through four generations to his great-grandson, T.
W. Sims, of this city. The strap is a plain affair, glued to a wooden back, and has evidently seen service although it is by no means worn out.—Roadside Record.

TROUT ON A DIET OF MICE.—"During the past few days," writes a correspondent of the Dumfries, Scot., Courier, "trout have been caught in the Annan-dale streams which have been feeding on the mice, or field voles, with which our pastures are plagued. A Moffat lady, who had got a present of trout from a friend living near Evan Water, was the other day surprised to hear her domestic scream, and, on inquiring the cause, found it was due to the presence of a vole in the stomach of a half-pound trout. A gentleman angling in Moffat Water caught a pound trout, near Bodesbeck, and on cutting up the fish found a whole vole in its stomach. The voles run to the streams in dry weather and many of them are drowned. It will be strange if the trout has not been classed with the hawk, the owl, and the weasel as a 'natural enemy.'"

A SUMMER WITHOUT NIGHTS.—To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of the night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 10 o'clock and rises again four hours later, during a greater part of the month of June.
But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness; the refraction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday, and enables one to read the finest print without artificial light at any time during the "night." At the head of the Gulf of Bothnia there is a mountain on the summit of which the sun shines continually during the five days of June 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23. Every six hours during this season of continual sunshine a steamer leaves Stockholm crowded with visitors anxious to witness the phenomenon. At the same place during the winter the sun disappears and is not seen for weeks; then it comes in sight again for 10, 15 or 20 minutes, gradually lengthening its stay until finally it stays in sight continuously for upward of 120 hours.
